Water In The West-Reading/Discussion Group Begins

Historically, one of the most disputed elements of the desert West has been water. How has water affected western society and culture? What is the history of reclamation and irrigation? How do cities, ranches, mines and recreation share this natural resource? The Nevada Humanities Committee is sponsoring a reading/discussion group to discuss water in the West featuring books, films and guest lecturers.

The focus of the discussions is designed to get a broad understanding of the issue and those with an interest in an impartial and informed discussion are encouraged to participate. An organizational meeting will be held on Tues., March 19, at 7 p.m., at the Learning Resource Center at Northern Nevada Community College.

The groups are being held in libraries around the state and are part of a year-long, statewide Nevada Humanities Committee project called "A River Too Far? The Past and Future of Civilization in the Desert." Many aspects will be explored including the exploration and settlement of the American West, the growth of agriculture and cities, the politics of irrigation and the art and literature of the desert. A two day conference will be held in Reno April 26-27 which will further explore the problems and opportunities for human life in an arid environment.

Nancy Remington and Ken Shafer instructors at Northern Nevada Community College, will serve as moderators for the reading/discussion group. It is free and open to the public. To find out more about the group, please call Nancy Remington at 738-8493 ext 260.

These groups and other programs in this series are made possible in part by a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities. E.I. Ind. 3/16/91

Series set on western water use

The Nevada Humanities Committee is sponsoring a year-long series of reading-discussion groups on water in the West.

An organizational meeting is slated for 7 p.m. next Tuesday at the Northern Nevada Community College Learning Resource Center.

The project, entitled "A River Too Far? The Past and Future of Civilization in the Desert," concerns history and settlement of the American West, the growth of agriculture and cities, the politics of irrigation and the art and literature of the desert. The groups will use books, films and guest lecturers, noted Nancy Remington, NNCC instructor.

Remington and NNCC instructor Ken Shafer are slated to moderate groups held in Elko. All sessions are free and open to the public. Additional information may be obtained by calling Remington at 738-8493, ext. 260.

The Nevada Humanities Committee has planned a related two-day conference in Reno April 26-27 on the problems and opportunities for human life in an arid climate. Information is available by calling Joan Morrow at 784-6587.

The reading-discussion groups and other programs in the series are funded partially by a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities.

NNCC offers plant ID class

Northern Nevada Community College's life science department is offering an eight week class on the identification of spring flora and native plant communities in Northeastern Nevada, reports Valerie Easterly, director of planning and public information.

Students in the class will be getting hands-on experience. They will be asked to identify and prepare botanical specimens, as well as record important information concerning the natural history of the plant. Along with regularly scheduled class times, students will participate in three class field trips.

The class starts April 10 and will meet each Wednesday evening from 7 to 10 p.m. in the Lundberg Hall biology lab. Interested individuals may enroll at Student Services or may enroll the first class night. Mark Ports at 738-8493 or 738-4270 will furnish more information.

NEVADA PHOTOGRAPHER OF THE YEAR CLIFF SEGERBLOM • 1915-1990

Cliff Segerblom began his career as photographer for the Boulder Dam project and other projects for the Bureau of Reclamation. The Boulder City resident had numerous awards and accomplishments to his credit, as well as acquaintance with photographers of the likes of Ansel Adams, Margaret Bouike-White and Alfred Eisenstadt. As public relations photographer for the Las Vegas Visitors Authority in the early 1950s, Segerblom was assigned to photograph Elvis Presley in his first performance at the old Last Frontier. He founded the photography department at the University of Nevada, Las Vegas and, with watercolor as his true love, he started the Grand Canyon-Colorado River watercolor-photography UNLV workshops. Segerblom's painting, "Morning Ride" (1982) is the featured image for this year's Shooting the West symposium.

SPECIAL GUESTS:

- Annie Griffiths Bell, photographer/freelance photo editor, Silver Spring, Maryland. An assignment photographer for National Geographic since 1978, Griffiths-Bell is also a freelance photo editor and does book consulting. She has worked on far-flung assignments for such other publications as Smithsonian, Newsweek and Geo. She has received awards from the National Press Photographers Association, the Associated Press and the White House News Photographers Association. Her work has been exhibited around the world.

- C.J. Hadley, Washoe Valley, Nevada-based photojournalist. By popular demand, Hadley returns as moderator for Shooting the West.

- Howard Hickson, director of Northeastern Nevada Museum in Elko.

- John Running, photographer, Flagstaff, Ariz. A veteran photographer of the West for more than 20 years, Running is well-known for his Native American portraits and his six books, which include Honor Dance. His new book, Pictures for Solomon, was published in fall of 1990 and is a collection of portraits that Running has taken around the world. With a degree in anthropology, Running decided photography was a better way to communicate the idea of "helping man understand man", and so began his career as a documentary film maker and photographer. He has worked extensively in the Great Basin and will relate and show some of that work.

- Stephen Trimble, writer/photographer/editor, Salt Lake City, Utah. Trimble has published several award-winning books on western lands, including his most recent, The Sagebrush Ocean. Trimble has edited Words From the Land and Our Voices, Our Land, collections of work by observers of the West. He will share those stories at Shooting the West, as well as showing his powerful images of the West.

Film series continues at NNCC

Northern Nevada Community College continues its "celebration of women" on Wednesday with the presentation of a film titled "Talking History."

The award-winning film is from the series "With Silk Wings" produced by Asian Women United. The film features several Asian women who journeyed across the Pacific to make their homes in America. They tell a story of endurance and strength, overcoming language barriers, poverty and discrimination.

The public is invited to the showing at 12 p.m. in the multipurpose room of Berg Hall. An informal discussion of the film will be held if time permits.

Marbea Griffith is scheduled to instruct a six-week "Survival Sewing" class at Northern Nevada Community College beginning April 2.

NNCC sewing class offered

"Survival Sewing" is slated next month at Northern Nevada Community College.

The six-week course begins April 2.

Participants will learn how to select suitable fabrics for a pattern, how to use a sewing machine and accessories and how to prolong the life of a sewing machine with simple maintenance and repairs. Pattern alteration and shortcuts to tailoring will be discussed.

Marbea Griffith is the course instructor. She is a graduate of the University of California Northridge. She began sewing in 1963 when she could not afford to purchase her cheerleading uniform. Griffith has sewn professionally since 1972 and specializes in custom sewing, toys and home decor.

Classes are scheduled to be held from 8 a.m. to noon on Tuesdays and Thursdays. Participants should bring their own sewing machine and supplies.

Registration for the three-credit class may be made by calling Student Services office at 738-8493.

NNCC presents Third Great-Basin Lecture

According to the Nevada Natural Heritage Program, Nevada ranks seventh among the fifty states with the highest number of sensitive and rare plant and animal species. Learn more about these organisms and the people who monitor them when Northern Nevada Community College presents the third Great Basin lecture of the season.

Dr. Glenn Clemmer, biologist with the heritage program, will present a slide program exploring many of Nevada's well-known species, as well as lesser-known rarities.

Join Dr. Clemmer for this fascinating presentation Tuesday, April 9 at 7 p.m. in the auditorium of the Northeastern Nevada Museum. The lecture is free and everyone is invited. Call Mark Ports at 738-8493 for more information.

UNR Offers Educator's Math Course

The University of Nevada, Reno will offer the course "Special Problems: Manipulative Mathematics in the Elementary School" next month in Elko.

The course will focus on the use of manipulative mathematics activities appropriate for the elementary/middle school.

The course will be offered April 12 4-10 p.m. and April 13 8 a.m. - 5 p.m. at Northern Nevada Community College. The fee for the one-credit course is $48 for undergraduate and $60 for graduate credit.

To register, contact the university's community coordinator for Elko, Juanita Karr, NNCC 901 Elm St., Elko, NV 89801, 738-8493.

For more information, call the university's Division of Continuing Education at 784-4046.

UNR Offers Course To Carlin Teachers

A course will be offered to Carlin area educators next month by the University of Nevada, Reno that focuses on motivating students to take constructive action to conserve wildlife and natural resources.

"Special Topics: Aquatic Wild" will provide teachers with information to assist students in developing awareness and knowledge about aquatic wildlife.

The class will be held on April 12 from 4 - 10 p.m. and April 13 from 8 a.m. - 5 p.m., in the Science Room of Carlin High School. The one-credit course fee is $48 for undergraduate and $60 for graduate credit.

Second women's conference set at Elko college May 17

EDFP 4/13/91

Northern Nevada Community College and Charter Counseling Center are sponsoring their second annual women's conference entitled "Celebrate You II," announces Val Easterly of NNCC.

The all-day conference will have 18 workshops and will be held from 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. May 17 in Berg Hall at NNCC.

According to Karen Kimber of AHEC and Debbie Heaton-Lamp of NNCC's Single Parent Center, co-chairmen of the planning committee, "This year's topics build on the issues we addressed in our first conference. Our first conference was designed to raise awareness of women's issues and address concerns. This conference will present topics which address solutions to those concerns.

"Our planning committee has worked for over a year to develop the topics and speakers. Both local and out-of-town speakers will address such topics as the art of business communications, financial planning for women, public speaking, leadership traits, computing, and adjusting to rural life. We also have a luncheon planned with a decadent dessert and a special presentation and fashion commentary on career dressing by Linda Jensen of Nordstrom's, Salt Lake City."

Heaton-Lamp and Kimber note "We have been lucky to have the help of so many women in preparing for this conference. Other members of the planning committee who have contributed time and materials include Marie Cook of PREPARE; Pat Warren, Mary Hayford, and Valerie Easterly, NNCC; Pat Knight, Elko County Women's Center; Barbara Errecart, JTPA and the Private Industry Council; Karen Tanner, Print 'n Copy; Linda Scartezina and Marcella Jones, Charter Center; and Phyllis Peterson, Elko County Convention Center."

Although there is no pre-registration for the individual sessions, pre-registration for the conference is required by May 3. Women may register at NNCC Student Services at Berg Hall. Conference fees are $25 and include lunch; the total fee for one credit will be $39. An additional $15 will be added as late registration after the May 3 deadline.

Heaton-Lamp also notes there are a limited number of scholarships available for the conference. She will furnish more information at NNCC, 738-8493; additional information on registration is available from NNCC Student Services.

Lectures on women in the west

Susan Armitage, director of Washington State University's American studies program, is scheduled to present two lectures in Elko next week.

Armitage is scheduled to present the "Women in Western Landscape" lecture Monday at 1:30 p.m. in the Bureau of Land Management office at 3900 Idaho St.

Her program, "Through Women's Eyes: Art and Photography of the West by Women," is scheduled to be presented Wednesday at 7 p.m. at Northeastern Nevada Museum. An informal reception will follow the program.

The public is invited to attend the lectures and the reception.

Armitage is slated to complete the second part of a "humanist in residence" program while at Northern Nevada Community College. The program consists of meeting with faculty, conducting workshops and lectures, and working with professors in humanities and social science curriculums. She visited Elko for the first time in October.

According to Joyce Shaw of NNCC, Armitage is a noted historian and scholar on women's studies, and her residency, sponsored by the Nevada Humanities Committee, is central to the "Women in the West" program, which has been the focus of this academic year.

Film slated Wednesday

Northern Nevada Community College is slated to present "Agueda Martinez" at noon Wednesday in the Berg Hall multipurpose room.

The film explores the history, life and values of Agueda Martinez, a 77-year-old woman of Navajo-Mexican descent, and reflects on the special harmony she has with herself and her environment, according to Joyce Shaw of NNCC.

Martinez demonstrates how the roles and traditions of her ancestors support her life as a farmer and a weaver.

People may bring a brown-bag lunch.

NNCC lecture on astronomy here Friday

Mary Kay Hemenway, senior lecturer in astronomy from the University of Texas at Austin, is scheduled to visit Elko Friday and Saturday, announces Joyce Shaw of Northern Nevada Community College.

Hemenway will present a lecture entitled "Women in Twentieth Century Astronomy" at 7:30 p.m. Friday in the Northeastern Nevada Museum theater. Shaw said the lecture will highlight the contributions of women to the field.

The lecture is part of NNCC's year-long tribute to women.

On Saturday, Hemenway will present a workshop for teachers and parents on "Teaching Astronomy in the Classroom." Anyone interested in enrolling in the one-credit workshop may sign up at the NNCC Student Services office. The cost is $24 plus a $5 lab fee.

Hemenway also will discuss employment options and offer career guidance. High school and college students who are interested in astronomy careers may call Shaw at 738-8493. EDPF 4/24/91

Dr. Hemenway To Lecture At NNCC

Northern Nevada Community College announces the visit of Dr. Mary Kay Hemenway to the community April 26 and 27. Dr. Hemenway is senior lecturer in the field of astronomy at the University of Texas, Austin. The public is invited to participate in a variety of activities conducted by Hemenway this weekend.

A lecture titled "Women in Twentieth Century Astronomy" will be presented Friday, April 26, 7:30 p.m., in the theater of the Northeastern Nevada Museum.

On Saturday, April 27, Hemenway will present a workshop for teachers and interested parents titled "Teaching Astronomy in the Classroom." The workshop is designed to foster an interest in and a comprehension of the exciting field of astronomy. Interested persons can enroll for the 1 credit workshop at NNCC's Student Services Office. Cost for the workshop is $24 plus a $5 lab fee.

High school and college students can also learn first-hand about possible future astronomical careers. Interested students are invited to schedule appointments with Dr. Hemenway and receive valuable guidance for their career pursuits. For more information call Joyce Shaw at 738-8493. Dr. Hemenway's visit is made possible by the American Astronomical Society with support from the Harlow Shapley Visiting Lectureship Endowment Fund. E. Ind. 4/24/91

Women's conference set May 17 at NNCC

Elko's second annual women's conference will be held from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. May 17 at Northern Nevada Community College, reports Valerie Easterly, one of the coordinators for the event. The conference, "Celebrate You II" is sponsored by NNCC and Charter Counseling. The day-long conference will have 18 workshops.

Featured topics are: business communications and personal communications; financial planning for women; public speaking; leadership traits; computing; adjusting to rural life; dieting; fitness; parent care; co-dependency; women's legal rights; self-esteem and leadership traits in handwriting.

In addition to the workshops, participants will hear a fashion commentary on career dressing by Linda Jensen of Nordstroms of Salt Lake City.

The cost of the conference is $25, or $30 if continuing education credit is desired. Pre-registration is required by Friday. An additional $15 late fee will be added after Friday if class room remains. Interested persons can register at the Student Services office in Berg Hall.

Summer class in Wendover

Pat Collins, Youth-At-Risk coordinator, and Fred Gorton, Wendover elementary school teacher, have arranged for a new elementary summer school to be held in the Wendover area. The courses are offered through Northern Nevada Community College's Youth-At-Risk program through August 1.

Over 40 students are attending classes in math, English and English as a Second Language. According to Collins, pupils whose families could not afford the program received scholarships through the efforts of Fred Gorton and the generosity of area businesses. The Silver Smith Casino, Nevada Crossing, State Line Hotel and Casino, Peppermill Inn and Casino, High Desert Advocate, Continental Lime and Heritage Properties donated to the program.

Collins reported that the program has been very successful and NNCC is planning to offer it again next year. Anyone interested in the program may call Collins at 738-8493, ext 256. EDFP 7/16/91

Training group meets

Persons interested in starting a chapter of the American Society of Training and Development are scheduled to meet from 6 to 7:30 p.m. tomorrow in Berg Hall at Northern Nevada Community College.

Virginia Wilson, faculty associate at Arizona State University, and Michael de la Torre, education consultant with the Nevada Department of Education, are scheduled to speak. The speakers will cover characteristics of good teaching practices.

The goal of ASTD is to provide leadership to individuals and organizations to help achieve work-related competence, performance and fulfillment, according to Cliff Ferry of Northern Nevada Community College. ASTD is an international organization with 9,000 members in nine Western states.

Anyone interested in joining the group or attending the meeting may call Ferry at 738-8493. EDFP 6/17/91

Wildflowers And Insects of Island Lake Class At NNCC

The Biology Department of NNCC is offering a one-credit summer class which explores the basic natural history of the wildflowers and insects of Island Lake.

According to Mark Ports, Biology instructor, "...the cool, wet spring in Elko this year has created a phenomenal show and is a spectacular opportunity to study the plant and insect communities of the Ruby Mountains. We'll be studying the flowers and insects through the use of slides, specimens, and field trips."

The class will be held Tuesday and Thursday, July 16th and 18th, from 7:00 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. and will also include a day long field trip on Saturday, July 20th. The field trip is a two mile hike to Island Lake, the subalpine zone above Lamoille Canyon.

Ports notes, "This course is for anyone interested in the natural history of the Ruby Mountains. The course may also be used as credit for re-certification for teachers."

To enroll, please go to Student Services in Berg Hall at Northern Nevada Community College. The course number is Biology 299B. Or, for more information, please contact Mark or Lois Ports, 738-4270. E. Ind. 7/10/91

Lab tech program to start at Elko college

A medical laboratory technician program is slated to begin in September at Northern Nevada Community College. Gloria Everett will be the program director.

The college is offering the program in conjunction with the University of Nevada at Reno School of Medicine. The university will provide specialized lecture courses and the clinical rotations will be the responsibility of the NNCC Health Sciences Division.

Everett said, "The program includes extensive classroom and laboratory work and incorporates practical experiences in affiliated laboratories. The courses are designed to prepare students for diverse activities in Nevada hospitals, laboratories and clinics. Our program will prepare students with a sound, medically oriented base for expansion to closely related fields.

"The first two years of study provide the student with the necessary technical skills. Our course curriculum includes medical laboratory principles, instrumentation, clinical chemistry, hematology, immunology, microbiology, parasitology and clinical practicum."

Everett said she will instruct most of the classes and students will attend lecture courses broadcast from UNR via the school's new "smart technology" teleconferencing system.

Students completing the two-year program will receive an Associate of Applied Science degree and are eligible to take the medical laboratory technician national certificate exam or pursue a baccalaureate degree at UNR.

Everett was formerly the manager of the clinical lab at Elko General Hospital. She is certified as a registered medical technologist and a member of the American Society of Medical Technology. She is a graduate of Carroll College in Helena, Mont.

Everett can be reached at 738-3828 for more information about the course.

Gloria Everett has been the named director of the new medical laboratory technician program at Northern Nevada Community College. The course is slated to begin in September.

College sets registration; new instructors join staff

Registration for classes at Northern Nevada Community College will be held from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. Aug. 28 and 29 in Berg Hall. Late registration has been scheduled on Aug. 30 and Sept. 1.

Several new instructors have joined the staff at NNCC and new classes have been added to the schedule, according to Julie Duewel, publicist for the college.

Ed Martin has been hired to teach welding techniques this fall. A former instructor at Western Nevada Community College in Carson City, Martin said his classes will cover various welding techniques. "We want to teach every process that we possibly can," the instructor noted.

Martin's classes are part of the mine maintenance program of Newmont and Barrick mines. Students completing the courses become certified welders, Duewel said.

A second phase of the mine maintenance program, diesel technology, will be taught by Jim Mangum. The course will cover the technical aspects of repair procedures for heavy and diesel equipment and will include courses in air conditioning, hydraulics, electronics, engine systems and auto lube systems.

Students enrolled in Mangum's classes also will learn to work on fuel systems, Duewel said, and each course will consist of 32 hours of class time.

Mangum is a veteran of the U.S. Air Force, where he learned aircraft and engine repairs. He has worked on automobiles and over-the-road trucks and was employed at the Anaconda Minerals Company in Tonopah for 20 years.

Jill Stringfield will be teaching a new course, office occupations, at the college this fall. The Elko woman holds a degree in psychology and has worked in business offices for many years.

The course will consist of a variety of classes, including office procedures, that are designed to provide up-to-date information about what is happening in the modern business office. She also will be instructing students on the printing calculator, typewriter and transcribing machines. A legal secretarial training class is also on the agenda.

College algebra, calculus and physics will be taught by Debi Nelson. Nelson, who holds degrees in geology from the University of Idaho, said she feels strongly about the importance of learning math skills.

Pat Collins will be teaching a program designed to help teen-agers obtain marketable job skills. The state-funded program will help youths obtain an education, including a GED or high school diploma, and also to learn what Collins dubs "life survival skills." The classes will be open to teens who have dropped out of high school, he added.

Collins said he wants to concentrate on getting the young people actual jobs. "The most important aspect for these kids to develop is a positive self image," he noted. "We want to help them feel good about themselves."

Mill mechanics is another part of the mine maintenance schedule to be taught at NNCC. The course will be taught by Ralph Siler, a former junior high school teacher and mine employee. Siler said the course will cover the safe use of basic tools including hand saws, files, lathes and more. Other topics to be covered include lubrication, bearings, drive components, pumps, piping and bulk material handling.

Martha Fenger has joined the staff in the nursing department at the college. She will be teaching a variety of both theory and clinical classes when classes resume next month.

Fenger has degrees in nursing from South Dakota University and the University of Wisconsin-EauClaire. She has previously taught in Rice Lake, Wis., and the Orvis School of Nursing at the University of Nevada Reno.

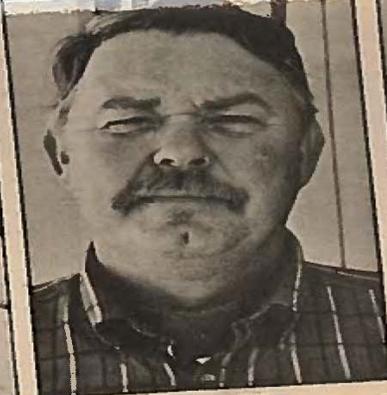

The new nursing instructor said, "I am looking forward to working at NNCC." She noted that she enjoys working with handicapped children.

Dorothy S. Gallagher Is Elected Chairman Of University of Nevada Board of Regents

Dorothy Sewell Gallagher of Elko was recently elected chairman of the board of regents of the University of Nevada System.

The Elkoan will serve a two-year term of office, ending in June 1991.

First elected to the university's governing board in 1980, and re-elected to a second six-year term in 1988, during her tenure on the board, Gallagher has served as vice chairman twice and has chaired the board's academic affairs and legislative and liaison committees. She has also headed several ad hoc presidential search committees for institutions including the Desert Research Institute, Elko's Northern Nevada Community College, and Truckee Meadows Community College.

As chairman, Gallagher will appoint chairs and members of the regents' standing committees, and will also have the power to form ad hoc committees to address particular concerns, or to search for new campus presidents when vacancies exist.

Gallagher is expected to announce her appointments tomorrow and Friday during a regents' meeting on the UNR campus.

A fourth-generation Nevadan born in Elko, Gallagher has been a rancher, real estate developer and owner of small businesses. She was educated in Elko schools and graduated from UNR in 1947 with a Bachelor's degree in Zoology.

As a regent, Gallagher represents 11 counties in northeastern and central Nevada, encompassing Elko, Esmeralda, Eureka, Humboldt, Lander, Lincoln, Mineral, Nye, Pershing, White Pine, and portions of Churchill and Washoe counties.

She was honored in 1987 by Junior Achievement, which inducted her into its Business Leaders' Hall of Fame.

A member of the board of directors of Vitality Center, Gallagher has also been a member of the Security Pacific Bank board of directors since 1981. Her father, Harvey Sewell, founded the bank in 1939, and also owned a chain of grocery stores in seven western states.

The new board of regents chairman is also a past member and chairman of the Elko General Hospital board of trustees, and also presently serves on the board of directors for Blue Cross/Blue Shield of Nevada. Her work and interests have also centered around youth programs—she has been actively involved in Boy Scouts of America, PTA, and the PEO Sisterhood.

Gallagher and her husband, Elko dentist Thomas H. Gallagher, have three grown children—Michael, 40, owner of Elko's Gallagher Ford-Lincoln-Mercury; Tom, 38, of Summit Engineering's Reno office, and Frank, 38, a commercial real estate broker in Reno.

Lamoille Church Book Research Is Described

Linda Stapley, author of Together In My Name, described how she researched the history of the Lamoille Community Presbyterian Church to a noontime audience at Northern Nevada Community College last week.

Stapley said she suspects that she was asked to write the history not only because she is a church member but also because of her work in libraries. "I guess they thought I would be literate since I work in the NNCC library," Stapley said.

The author recalled that the book was originally planned as a brochure but as Stapley continued to gather materials it grew into a book of 102 pages. "A librarian doesn't always know when to stop," she joked.

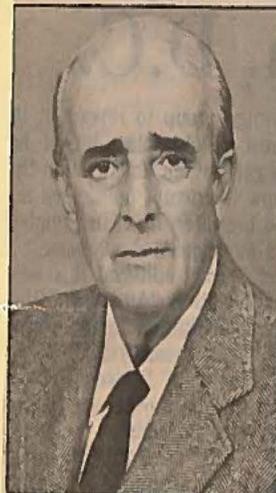

Struggle and survival are key words in the history of the church. Stapley explained that funds and temporary declines in membership were only one of many struggles the church has overcome. The church also dealt with a tottering steeple, wasps in the walls and an outhouse used part-time as a still.

Stapley is especially proud that the book is completely a local production. Spring Creek artist Marilyn Cordes is the illustrator and the Elko Independent is the publisher. Many local residents contributed information, with local historian Edna Patterson offering special help, the author said.

Stapley's book is available for purchase at the Northeastern Nevada Museum Gift Shop.

Community College Teachers Organize

by LORI GILBERT
Independent Staff Writer

Northern Nevada Community College teachers are organizing for better representation—but not necessarily union representation—in answer to what some have outlined as inequity in the Nevada higher education system.

"We're very optimistic here," says NNCC Faculty President Mike McFarlane. "We have a new president and his main priority is to work with the faculty." McFarlane, Physical Sciences instructor at NNCC, explained that teachers at the Elko facility are joining with instructors in the state's three other community colleges in protesting what they see as salary inequities between college and university faculty, and—in some cases—inequities between college salaries themselves. Instructors involved in the move also decry a lack of communication with administrators, and difficulties for students to transfer courses from college to university levels.

McFarlane noted that NNCC faculty, both full and part-time instructors, are the lowest paid teachers in both the college and university system.

"We are significantly behind in pay scale," he said. "And that's been hard to understand."

The faculty president also represents the Elko campus as a member of the Community College Faculty Relations Committee, an ad hoc committee of the Board of Regents, that is scheduled to meet Thursday with regents to discuss recommendations resulting from a recent teacher survey.

The regents are reportedly anxious to head off any unionization effort and, according to one member, "It is the absolute top priority of this board that these problems be straightened out."

Currently, McFarlane said,

Nevada's community colleges are developing a collective bargaining agreement to address labor issues, a plan that was approved by regents last April and is scheduled to be voted upon in January.

McFarlane said new policies are being formulated in Elko as a result of the committee meeting.

"We're working now on the shared governance concept," an idea designed to allow faculty members to become more involved in the functioning of the Board of Regents and school administration. McFarlane described the concept as "a method of strengthening the current system."

Directors updated at NENDA meeting

Members of the board of directors for the North East Nevada Development Authority (NENDA) met Thursday to review the biannual report for this fiscal year.

Executive director Kelly Lucy told the board that during the past six months the NENDA office has been involved in the creation of 33 jobs. He said the new positions and their associated businesses added a total of $2,232,000 to the economies of the county and state.

Lucy claimed his office was instrumental in the decisions of Elko Audio, Humboldt Lumber Company, Mountain States Mineral Enterprises Inc. and the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company establishing business firms here. He said the four companies currently are employing 33 individuals.

The director said NENDA is in constant contact with approximately 15 clients who are fairly serious about bringing a business into Elko County. Many of these businesses are retail or service companies, he explained.

During his report Lucy explained the funding process for NENDA. He said the authority received $45,000 from the Nevada Commission on Economic Development. Elko County contributed $12,000 this year, he noted, which is an increase of $2,500 from last year.

In addition, he noted, NENDA has raised $7,500 from the private sector this year through the renewal of memberships and fund-raising luncheons. He said the goal is to raise at least $15,000 from private businesses and individuals.

Lucy said NENDA was formed to promote economic development and diversification throughout Elko County. He said his office has been assisting Carlin in obtaining Bureau of Land Management properties for expansion and is working with Wells on the Thousand Springs Power Project.

Drury Thiercof is the chairman of the board and Valerie Easterly and Mike Erickson serve as vice-chairmen. Other members include Harold Baugh, Dennis Parker, Jim Polkinghorne, Terry Shobe, Gary Moore and James Young.

Heaton-Lamp new director of single-parent program

Debbie Heaton-Lamp is the new director of the Northern Nevada Community College Single-Parent Program, reports NNCC publicist Julie Duewel.

Heaton-Lamp, who replaced Georgia Hemsley, received a bachelor's degree in nursing from Washington State University and a master's degree in counseling from the University of Nevada Reno.

"I see single-parent problems as a societal problem," explains Heaton-Lamp, who recently moved to Elko. "Extra resources are needed to enable these families to live above the poverty level, and the single-parent program is a shining example of a way to accomplish this."

The program is federally funded through grants and helps single parents gain education and job skills. If parents qualify, NNCC offers them free tuition, books, and child care for approximately one year. NNCC also assists parents in receiving other financial help such as Pell Grants and scholarships.

"A lot of the single-parent program is counseling parents both personally and with their careers, and to support them as they go to school and deal with every day life situations," says Heaton-Lamp, whose background includes providing counseling services in Reno through UNR and working as a school nurse for six years in the Washoe County School District.

Heaton-Lamp and employees Ike Cress, Marty Myers and Barbara Gonzales work closely and exchange helpful information with other services available in the community such as Nevada Department of Human Resources (JOIN), the Te-Moak Tribe of Western Shoshone, Vocational Rehabilitation, and the Employment Security Department, Duewel said.

The single-parent program also conducts vocational testing that allows students to determine what professions they may want to pursue. In addition, the program provides standardized tests to determine student's math, reading and competency levels. If needed, NNCC also offers tutoring and extra classes.

One of Heaton-Lamp's goals is to expand the program. "We want to encourage others to apply for the program," she says, adding, "it's important to note that the single-parent program is not limited to women."

There are currently 41 students in the program from Elko, Carlin, Wells, Ely, Wendover and Winnemucca, and 40 in a sister program, Youth At Risk, directed by Pat Collins.

"Youth at Risk helps young people land on their feet by providing career and personal counseling, vocational training, work experience and financial assistance to anyone who does not have a GED or high school diploma," explains Collins. "The program also assists high school students who may need help graduating.

"In Nevada, the high school drop-out rate averages 25 percent, meaning one out of four students drops out."

"We're trying to reach those students having trouble in school," Heaton-Lamp says, "and encourage them to stay in school and graduate."

Both Collins and Heaton-Lamp agree the biggest benefit of both NNCC programs is building self-esteem, confidence and hope in people so they can go on to support themselves and their families.

NNCC teachers hear Barbara Bush speak

Barbara Bush was seen and heard — discussing literacy in the United States — by several Northern Nevada Community College teachers, reports Pat Warren of NNCC's continuing education department.

Bush addressed the opening session last week of the American Association of Adult and Continuing Education Conference at the Salt Palace in Salt Lake City.

Warren said she, Cliff Ferry, Maria Toledo, Sue Bettles and Judy Hovan were among 1,600 people from the United States, Canada, Germany, England and France who attended the conference.

Concurrent workshops were held during the several day meeting on Adult Basic Education, English as a Second Language and Adult Education on both community college and university levels.

Continuing education doesn't focus on degree programs, Warren explains, but is concerned with all kinds of adult education including providing course work for teachers, doctors, lawyers and others who need constant study to keep their licenses current.

Another facet of continuing education is "workplace literacy." Ferry explains that NNCC is in the second year of a reading program taught at NNCC by teacher Maria Toledo for Hispanics. It is sponsored by the college and the Southern Pacific Railroad.

By January, he says, NNCC will be conducting a reading course in Wendover specifically for Hispanic employees of the Peppermill Inn and Casino, co-sponsor of the program with NNCC.

Warren said other similar programs are in progress for Cactus Pete's Casino in Wendover and at Newmont Gold Company.

19 Graduate From Clerical Program

Northern Nevada Community College's clerical skills training program awarded certificates of completion to 19 students during recent ceremonies held at the college.

Debbie Heaton-Lamp, project director for the three-year-old program, said students were trained in word processing, data entry, LOTUS, office procedures and other business-related subjects, and were also offered counseling in applying for work in the office environment.

Students completing the program were Angie McGarva, Wendy Ault, Emma Barrington, Jo Ann Brown, Carol Bush, Patty Fobes, Stacey Gardner, Lisa Lescalet, Judy Madrid, Becky Manning, Kimberly Marvin, Annette McDaniel, Barbara Olsen, Brenda Paice, Angel Pascarelli, Lynette Piffero, Theresa Pringle, Martina Puchard, Marie Riley, Kim Risk, Melanie Tom, and Marlene Tybo.

Heaton-Lamp noted the eight-week course—which was originally offered only to single parents, but is now open to the general public—will be conducted again in the fall, and invited anyone interested in the program to contact Cliff Ferry at 738-8493, extension 213. Single parents interested in the course are welcome to phone Heaton-Lamp at 738-8493, extension 305, for information on eligibility requirements.

Information on the program is also available through Job Opportunities in Nevada (JOIN), and the state's vocational rehabilitation and employment security departments, Heaton-Lamp reported.

A number of individuals and companies in the community assisted in the program and the graduation ceremonies, Heaton-Lamp said, offering thanks to Anthony Tom, The Flower Shop, Sprouse Reitz, Builder's Mart, McDonald's, Lundberg's, Elko Floral, D'Allesandro's, Dale White Motors, Wendy Rodabough, Newmont Gold Co., K-Market, Burger King, Blach Distributing Co., PCR Systems Plus, and Elko Sanitation.

1990 Was a Very Good Year at NNCC.

The College...

- Increased enrollment by 17%
- Developed an associate degree in welding as one of the cornerstones of mechanical technology - diesel, automotive, and mill maintenance
- Enhanced developmental education by starting a critical skills laboratory
- Conducted an intensive summer session clerical skills program for 19 students
- Initiated a nursing program for White Pine County
- Began preparations for National League of Nursing Accreditation
- Became the site of the Western-most office of the Western Folklife Center
- Obtained Funds for KNCC-FM, Eastern Nevada Public Radio
- Completed plans for the College/Community Center
- Began participating regularly in national teleconferences
- Conducted a rich array of Community Services
- Obtained a grand piano
- Conducted classes at 14 off-campus sites
- Completed a plan for campus development
- Created the first permanent faculty position at Winnemucca
- Cooperated with area mining companies and vendors in developing a two-year mechanical technology training program for 33 young Nevadans
- Cooperated with Elko County School District in continuing the adult diploma program and in creating summer remedial classes
- Cooperated with University of Nevada, Reno, in starting a Master's Degree in Educational Leadership

NNCC Receives Cord Grants

The E.L. Cord Foundation recently provided funding for computer equipment for Northern Nevada Community College's Career Center, and a $50,000 grant for the College Community Center project.

The $8,000 computer contribution enabled the college to purchase three computers—one of which is large enough to act as a file server and is loaded with Career Information System software. The other computers are also complete with career programs, as well as word processing software to assist students in developing resumes and letters of application.

Stan Aiazzi, dean of student services at the college, commented that the Career Center "has been made complete by this generous grant," noting that, with the availability of the computers, the center has seen a marked increase in use by both students and faculty. "We have just recently felt that we can truthfully rename the center and call it the Success Center," Aiazzi said.

Jeanne Blach, chairwoman of the NNCC Foundation, said the college is "most grateful" for the Cord Foundation's $50,000 grant for construction of the community center. "We really appreciate the support from a group such as the E.L. Cord Foundation," Blach said. She noted that the foundation is in the process of preparing for construction of the first phase of the center, and is continuing its campaign to obtain funds for the second phase of the building.

The Cord Foundation was created from the fortune of Erret Lobban Cord, an inventor and owner of the Auburn Automobile Company, Inc., during the 1930s. Cord also owned and operated several ranches, including one in Elko County. The foundation bearing his name provides funding to assist charitable and educational institutions and organizations.

NNCC is recognized for national awards

Northern Nevada Community College received national recognition and a number of awards during May, announced Ron Remington, NNCC president.

The college placed third in the National Council of Marketing and Public Relations course roster contest. NNCC placed behind Shoreline Community College of Seattle and Kent State University in the national competition, which is judged on content, clarity, page layout and creativity.

NNCC's mechanical technical training program (MTTP) won an Honorable Mention Award from the National Council of Instructional Administrators and will be featured as an "exemplary program" at the American Association of Community and Junior Colleges' national convention this summer.

Remington noted that MTTP's program provides a special career opportunity for high school graduates interested in mechanical technology. The program is an intensive two-year work-study course, which combines classroom and laboratory instruction with paid on-the-job training. The program was made possible through a consortium of eight area mining and mining-related companies.

NNCC student, Ciela Moon, was named alternate to the 1991 Minority Leaders Fellowship Program at the Washington Center for Internships and Academic Seminars. Moon was selected from more than 200 applicants in a highly competitive selection process, according to Remington.

Pat Warren, NNCC director of continuing education, has been appointed to the Mountain Plains Adult Education Association board of directors. She will represent Nevada in the eight-state, 500-member regional organization.

In addition, Bonnie Bilbao and Valerie Easterly were chosen to speak at the 13th annual National Institute for Staff and Organizational Development Conference at the University of Texas at Austin. Their topic, "Building Campus Communication and Teamwork," will be featured in the International Conference of Administrators.

Appointed: Pat Warren, director of continuing education at Northern Nevada Community College, was appointed to the Mountain Plains Adult Education Association Board of Directors at the association's annual convention last month in Sun Valley, Idaho. She and Kathy Odyanski of Truckee Meadows Community College in Reno will represent Nevada. The organization's 500 professional educator members from Arizona, Colorado, Idaho, Montana, New Mexico, Utah, Wyoming and Nevada have duties that range from teaching adult literacy to being deans of continuing education departments. The next MPAEA annual conference will mark the association's 50th year and is planned to be held in Salt Lake City.

Four named to NNCC board

Sharon Rhoads, Ray Kendall, John McDonough and Bill Guisti have been appointed to the advisory board at Northern Nevada Community College.

NNCC President Ron Remington in announcing the appointments said, "Our advisory board members provide a critical link to the community. We gather input and advice on everything from master facilities planning to program offerings.

"It is part of our mission as a community college to establish and maintain a sense of community in northeast Nevada. We share with the community a vision of progress and the advisory board members help us cement the partnership with all the communities within our service area."

The new advisory members will be seated July 1. Other board members include Dr. Hugh Collett, Scott Hase, Steve Hernandez, Chuck Knight, Eleanor Little-Prior and Dave Rhoden. Also serving are Connie Satterthwaite, Warren Scott, Gary Theilen, Sharon Feltman, Ralph Paoli and James Zacharias.

Lee Named To Management Consultant Position At NNCC

The Small Business Development Center at Northern Nevada Community College has a new management consultant. Thomas Lee of Pullman, Washington, joined the professional staff at NNCC on June 17.

"I am looking forward to working with the business community," says Lee. "In my previous assignment at the SBDC at Washington State, I worked with a variety of small businesses, from laundromats and construction companies to tropical fish stores. I have also performed feasibility studies and marketing analyses for new entrepreneurs."

The Small Business Development Center is a program jointly funded by the University of Nevada, Reno, and the U.S. Small Business Administration. The program, located on the NNCC campus, provides free management consulting to all small businesses in the area. The program assists new and existing businesses by helping them plan their growth potential and to develop and maintain professional management skills. Assistance is available in market research, accounting and record-keeping, capital formation and financing, international trade, and economic and business data analysis.

In addition to the counseling, the SBDC provides a variety of educational training seminars specifically designed for small businesses.

Lee replaces Valerie Easterly, who is now Director of Planning and Public Information at NNCC. Lee has a Master's Degree in Marketing and Education from the University of Idaho, and a Bachelor's Degree in Animal Science from the same institution. Lee's wife, Valerie, has recently joined Elko General Hospital as a Medical Laboratory Technician. The couple has two children, ages two years and two months.

Everett Featured In Shape Magazine Next Month

By Lisa Seymour

For three years, Gloria Everett has been reading about healthy lifestyles in Shape magazine. She never dreamed that someday she would end up as a Shape success story.

When the August edition of Shape hits the newsstands, Everett will be featured in a photo story shot on location in Kauai, Hawaii.

After reading other success stories about people who lost weight and changed their exercise habits, Everett felt that part of the story had not been told. "Losing too much weight can be as, or even more, dangerous as being overweight," said Everett. She felt if she shared her story on how she overcame anorexia, it might inspire others to seek help.

"On my 16th birthday, I was in the hospital and I weighed only 84 pounds; in a matter of six months time I had dropped 46 pounds," she explained. Everett, 34, said this was when she found out her losing weight had become a dangerous obsession.

Everett and her husband Dan, are originally from Glendive, Montana and have been living in Elko for seven years. The time she was anorexic is a distant memory. Now, Everett practices healthy eating and exercise habits. When she is not working as the Education Coordinator for the Medical/Lab Technician program at NNGC, she works out and runs daily.

Last year, she decided to write her story and send it to the magazine. In December, Shape called Everett and told her she had been chosen out of 1200 people as a success story winner. They said that she and one other winner, Lauren Canvel, would be flown to Kauai for a seven day stay and photo shoot at the Westin Kauai.

A representative for the magazine told Everett that her story was sure to inspire others and that they wanted to expand it with this photo session.

In the middle of February, Everett arrived in Kauai and was greeted with limousine service to the Westin, a luxurious resort. She met the other winner, Canvel, and before they could catch their breath, they were whisked off to wardrobe and makeup. For the next couple days, they were photographed by ESPN's Richard Hume, a professional photographer.

"The hardest thing," reflected Everett, "was trying to work like a professional model with very little instruction and no previous experience." "I was very nervous, but the people from Shape were supportive and patient with us."

After several photo shoots, including a Tai Chi sequence and a

water aerobics routine, Everett and Canvel were treated to herbal body wraps and fitness assessments.

Although the entire trip was a "Lifestyles of the Rich and Famous" experience, Everett said one of her favorite parts was being treated and pampered like a professional model and learning more about what goes into making a magazine feature photo story. The August issue of Shape should be available mid-July.

NURSING

NNCC pre-nursing to start

With the anticipation of starting a nursing program available to White Pine County residents in 1990, the Northern Nevada Community College of Ely has announced its pre-nursing classes.

This fall the Ely center is offering eight classes to fulfill the requirements which are pre-requirements for the actual clinical nursing program. The scheduled classes include anatomy and physiology, nutrition, psychology, sociology, English 101, humanities and intermediate algebra. Constitutional government and elementary algebra also are being offered through self-paced telecourse.

Students who are not interested in a nursing degree, however, may enroll in any of the courses for their own knowledge.

Anatomy and physiology is a class designed to teach facts about the body. According to experts in these fields, human hearts beat about 72 times each minute without any conscious effort. During their lifetimes, most people will digest about 60 thousand pounds of food, which is equal to six elephants. People also breathe 3,300 gallons of air a day, while their bodies heal and protect themselves. There are 206 bones in the human body and 656 muscles. More than 200 of them are involved when a person takes one step.

By the time it took readers to read the previous paragraph, their bodies would have replaced millions of cells.

In anatomy and physiology students also are slated to learn about the cell. Each person consists of some hundred trillion cells, yet began life as one single cell. Students will learn about genes and how eye color is determined. The blood and bones lecture usually coincides with Halloween.

NNCC...

And students will travel through the 62,000 miles of the human circulatory system, and examine what makes humans special — the brain.

Human anatomy and physiology is taught by Gerald Miller every Tuesday night. Lab times will be announced.

English 101 (the first semester of basic college English) will prepare students for college level writing and reading.

The proposed text book-reader is designed to acquaint students with the kinds of reading, writing and thinking skills they will need to master in order to communicate in all subjects across the college curriculum.

During the semester, students should be able to practice three essential college-level skills: To read and summarize an article (or story, report, essay, and so on); To read several articles on a particular topic and synthesize them according to one or more rhetorical schemes; and To read an article and write a critique of it, identifying and discussing the author's (and their own) assumptions.

This course has been designed to not only enhance the basic skills of reading and writing, but to demonstrate that all students can learn to read and write effectively and enjoyably.

The psychology course will bridge the gap between outer space and inner space, the greatest challenge for people. The instructor plans to delve into the immensity of the human mind with this first study of behavior. Topics include biological bases of behavior, perception, learning, motivation, memory, cognitive development, social and personality and psychology, abnormal behavior and psychopathology.

Psychology is taught every Thursday from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. by Jorinda Macgillivray.

Julie Gonzalez is slated to teach the elementary algebra class to allow students who have been out of school for a period of time to catch up on their algebra skills. This elementary course is intended for those who didn't take, or didn't understand, or don't remember high school algebra.

The course will cover the fundamental operations of natural numbers, integers, first-degree equations, and inequalities in one variable, products and factors, fractions and rational equations, graphs and linear systems, word problems, radical and quadratic equations.

The course is intended to provide a basic foundation for future mathematics needed in fields of business, economics, engineering and related fields.

NNCC sets discussion on early health care

A panel discussion about health care in Elko many years ago has been scheduled at noon Wednesday in Berg Hall at Northern Nevada Community College.

Veteran doctors Tom Hood, Les Moren and Jack Read will lead the discussion about their experiences in Elko when it was a small outpost in the Great Basin. Entitled "Sagebrush Physicians," the program is a part of a series that began last year at the college.

"The present medical establishment and the older generation of Elko owe much to the work of these physicians," explained Charles Greenhaw, Dean of Instruction at NNCC. "They have been not only doctors, but community leaders and builders."

Four years ago, NNCC created a special one-year "nooner" series of lectures titled "American Utopias" and "Frontiers of Knowledge," Greenhaw explained. The public response to the series convinced NNCC that the Elko public wanted lectures on timely and historical matters.

As part of the current series, "The South of Small Places," local folk historians give presentations about Elko, Wells, Carlin, Eureka and other surrounding areas.

A second program in the series is slated for November. Greenhaw said during this program a group of area residents will discuss life in Lamoille.

Nursing aid class slated

Registration began this morning for a nursing assistant certification class at Northern Nevada Community College.

Students can register at Berg Hall through Oct. 4, and classes are scheduled to begin Oct. 5. The four-credit class will meet for eight hours each Friday through Dec. 14. The cost is $96.

Janet Glenn, a spokesman for Elko General Hospital, said upon successful completion of the course and exam, a nursing assistant is able to work in a hospital, extended care facility or for a home health service.

She explained that a nursing assistant provides direct patient care under the supervision of a licensed health care provider. The assistant, she noted, follows established policy and procedures of the facility and contributes to the efficient operation of the nursing unit.

The class is approved by the State Board of Nursing and is open to anyone over the age of 16.

NNCC offers nursing class

Starting March 22, Northern Nevada Community College will begin a 10-week, four-credit training class for nursing assistants. Those completing the course will be eligible to take the Nevada Nursing Assistant Examination. The examination is necessary for certification as a nursing assistant.

Classes will be held on consecutive Fridays through May 24 from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. in Lundberg Hall, Room 7. Participants must register at NNCC Student Services. Class seating is limited to 15, so prompt registration is suggested. The cost of the class is $96 plus book fees.

Martha Fenger, NNCC nursing instructor, encourages interested individuals to call for more information. "The class," she says, "is designed for only individuals who need certification for employment in hospitals or nursing homes and is ideal for an individual considering a career in nursing but needing to know more about the field."

Students may contact Arlene Lotspeich at 752-3462 or NNCC Student Services at 738-8493.

New Medical Tech Program

Submitted by Area Health Education Center

Grant funds have made it possible for the School of Medicine to bring a two-year medical technology degree program to Northern Nevada Community College in the fall of 1991.

The program, offered jointly by the University of Nevada School of Medicine Clinical Laboratory Sciences program and NNCC, is similar to an ongoing program at Clark County Community College in Las Vegas. Lectures are provided by the School of Medicine program faculty, and the community college provides the labs and clinical rotations.

Dr. Ken Maehara, director of the clinical lab science department, said both programs will be upgraded with the addition of a computer network system that will allow the live transmission of slides and lecture. With the new system, students in Elko will be seeing the same thing students in Reno will see.

Once students complete the two year program, they can go immediately to work or transfer directly into the bachelor's degree program in clinical laboratory science at the Reno campus of the School of Medicine. For more information, contact AHEC's Northeastern Center at 738-3828.

NNCC Offers Clinical Lab Program

E. Ind. 6/26/91

Northern Nevada Community College (NNCC) announces its new Medical Laboratory Technician (MLT) program, which begins this September. The MLT is offered jointly by the University of Nevada School of Medicine and NNCC. The school of Medicine provides specialized lecture courses, and clinical rotations are provided by the NNCC Health Sciences Division.

According to Gloria Everett, program director, "...the program includes extensive classroom and laboratory work, and incorporates practical experiences in affiliated laboratories." Everett also said "The courses are designed to prepare students for diverse activities in Nevada hospitals, laboratories, and clinics. Our program will prepare students with a sound, medically-oriented base for expansion to closely related fields."

"The first two years of study provide the student with the necessary technical skills," says Ms. Everett. "Our course curriculum includes Medical Laboratory Principles, Instrumentation, Clinical Chemistry, Hematology, Immunology, Microbiology, Parasitology, and Clinical Practicum. I will be the instructor for most courses, and students will attend specialized lecture courses broadcast from UNR via our new "SMART TECHNOLOGY" teleconferencing system. Students completing the two-year program in Elko receive an Associate of Applied Science and are eligible to take the medical laboratory technician national certificate exam. Students may then also elect to pursue a baccalaureate degree at UNR."

Nursing class set here Friday

A workshop for nurses and rehabilitation assistants is scheduled from 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Friday at Northern Nevada Community College in Berg Hall.

The workshop will cover nursing intervention and rehabilitation for long-term care patients, according to Ann Diggins of Nevada Area Health Education Centers. Instructors will be Cheryl Parlin, clinical nursing specialist, and Hazel Hampton, case manager. Both instructors are from Saint Mary's Regional Medical Center in Reno.

The course is sponsored by Northeastern Nevada Area Health Education Center, a program of the University of Nevada School of Medicine. Anyone interested in attending the class may call the health office in Elko at 738-3828 or call Myrna Penafol at Ruby Mountains Manor at 738-9051.

Dear NNCC Student,

The Associated Student Body Executive Officers have initiated a Student I.D. Card program for those students attending NNCC full-time. The program will be implemented during the Fall 1990 registration and the card, which will include the holder's photograph, will be issued to students registering for 12 or more credits.

Many local merchants have already offered various discounts and benefits to students upon presentation of their I.D. cards and we are still actively seeking participation from additional members of the business community.

We encourage you to take advantage of the benefits offered to you by these merchants and to let them know that we, as students, appreciate their participation and support in this program. This brochure contains a current list of the participating businesses in the NNCC Student I.D. Card program.

Christmas dance set for Dec. 8

Northern Nevada Community College's Associated Student Body will sponsor a Christmas dance from 8:30 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. Dec. 8 in the Veterans of Foreign Wars (VFW) Hall on 14th Street across from Elko Police Station, reports Tammy Robinson, ASB senator.

The dance is open to the public. Music will be by Sound Tech Audio and refreshments will be available. Tickets are $3 for singles, $5 for couples and may be purchased beforehand at Student Services at NNCC or at the door. Proceeds will be used for ASB activities later in the year. Robinson says the student body officers hope the community will make a night of it by watching fireworks at Kimberly Nurseries and then going to the dance for a fun evening.

EOFP 11/5/90 NNCC plans open house

Instructors in the mechanical technology program at Northern Nevada Community College have scheduled an open house and tour of the shops to begin at 11 a.m. Wednesday in the welding shop.

Charles Greenhaw of the college said mining officials, supervisors and trainers, equipment vendors, sponsors of the maintenance training corporation, members of the college advisory boards and persons interested in the training of mill, diesel, welding and automotive technicians are especially invited.

He said people attending will have an opportunity to observe classes and the labs and "see first-hand the progress we've made with your help."

Hamburgers cooked on a mobile grill designed and fabricated in the welding shop will be served during the open house and the architect's rendering of a proposed technical arts building will be on display.

NNCC students slate yellow ribbon tying

A "Yellow-Ribbon Valentine" rally has been scheduled for 12:30 p.m. Thursday on the campus of Northern Nevada Community College.

Sponsored by the Associated Student Body (ASB), the rally will begin at the Rollan Melton Circle with a short ceremony. ASB President Toni Mendive said the Elko Unit of the Army National Guard will post the colors and the Rev. Donald Dunn of St. Paul's Episcopal Church will pay a brief tribute to the members of the armed services. Also speaking will be Ed Nickel of NNCC and Duane Hoem, U.S. Air Force retired.

Following the ceremony, rally participants will be provided yellow ribbons with red hearts to tie on the many trees on campus. Mendive said people can write the names of people serving in the Persian Gulf on the valentines. Ribbons honoring the prisoners of war also will be available.

Mendive, who invites everyone to attend the rally, said, "This is a wonderful opportunity for residents of the Elko area to confirm their support of the men and women performing their duties in the Mideast while offering the hope that the war will soon end."

"The student body at NNCC anticipates seeing every tree on the campus covered with ribbons," she added.

Yellow Ribbon Rally at NNCC

The Associated Student Body (ASB) at NNCC invites everyone in the Elko area to a "Yellow-Ribbon Valentine" Rally at Rollan Melton Circle on the campus Thursday, February 14 at 12:30 p.m.

ASB President Toni Mendive reports a short ceremony will include posting of the colors by members of the Elko Unit Army National Guard and brief tributes to members of the U.S. Armed Services given by Father Donald Dunn, of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Ed Nickel of NNCC and Duane Hoem, USAF Retired.

The rally will end with the tying of "yellow-ribbon valentines" on the many trees at the campus. "Those attending will be provided with yellow ribbons and red hearts on which they may write the names of family and friends who may be serving in the gulf," said Mendive. Ribbons honoring our prisoners of war will be available also.

Mendive states that this is a wonderful opportunity for residents of the Elko area to confirm their support of the men and women performing their duties in the Middle East while offering the hope that war will end soon. The student body at NNCC anticipates seeing every tree on the campus covered with ribbons.

ASB SPONSORS VALENTINES DANCE

A Valentine's Dance sponsored by NNCC's Associated Student Body is planned for the general public on Saturday from 8 to 12 a.m. The dance will take place in the student lounge in McMullen Hall at NNCC.

Contemporary music will be provided by Sound Tech Audio. Tickets for the dance are available at the door and the price will be $5 for couples and $3 for singles.

A small bonfire will be lit at 7:30 p.m. outside McMullen Hall in the open amphitheater, and hot-dogs, marshmallows and other refreshments will be offered. Students and non-students are invited to attend and enjoy the festivities. E. Ind. 2/13/91

Carnival on Friday

Northern Nevada Community College's Associated Student Body invites the public to attend a "Spring Fling Carnival" fundraiser from 5 to 9 p.m. Friday in Berg Hall.

Activities such as Nerf basketball, balloon darts and a cupcake walk are slated and food booths are scheduled to be erected. All proceeds will go toward the purchase of a big-screen television for use in the Independence Mining Company T.V. Lounge of the NNCC Foundation College Community Center, currently under construction.

Spring Fling Carnival Set

The Associated Student Body (ASB) at NNCC is sponsoring a fund raising "Spring Fling Carnival" on Friday, March 15th from 5 to 9 p.m. in Berg Hall at NNCC, according to ASB President Toni Mendive.

"There will be something for everyone, from balloon darts to golf putting, food booths to nerf basketball," said Mendive. There will also be a fishpond and "cupcake" walk for children.

The ASB invites everyone in the community to bring their families to enjoy an evening of fun and games. The event will be held inside Berg Hall.

ASB proceeds from the event will go toward the purchase of a big-screen television for the student center in the new college community building which is now under construction on campus.

The center is moving towards a late June completion date, said Toni Mendive of the ASB.

Native Plant Identification Class Offered

NNCC's life science department is offering an eight week class on the identification of Spring flora and native plant communities in Northeastern Nevada. The class is geared for the novice naturalist or persons interested in Nevada's native plants.

Students in the class will be getting hands on experience. They will be asked to identify and prepare botanical specimens, as well as record important information concerning the natural history of the plant. Along with regularly scheduled class times, students will participate in three class field trips.

The class starts April 10th and will meet each Wednesday evening from 7 to 10 p.m. in the Lundberg Hall biology lab. Interested individuals may enroll at Student Services or may enroll the first class night. For more information, call Mark Ports at 738-8493 or 738-4270.

Board member: Tammy Robinson, Northern Nevada Community College Associated Student Body senator, was recently elected to the board of directors of the Rocky Mountain Student Association at the RMSA Conference at Arizona State University in Tempe. Other NNCC students who attended the conference were Toni Mendive, current NNCC ASB president; Marilou Buenaventura, exchange student; Patty Knight, student representative; and Cynthia Vaughn, ASB senator. The RMSA includes student body officers from Nevada, Wyoming, Utah, Arizona and Idaho colleges.

Arbor Day observance at college

Community members gathered at the Northern Nevada Community College campus recently for the memorial tree planting held in honor of Arbor Day.

This year, friends and family members donated trees in memory of Tony Mendive, Harry Lipparelli, Myrtle Koncher, Linda S. Wright and Julie Puccinelli. The ceremony included a keynote address by NNCC President Ron Remington, remarks in memory of each honoree and a visit to the trees. Louie Horton, of NNCC, reported that over the years, more than 30 trees have been donated to the college for Arbor Day plantings.

Osco pledges $25,000 to new NNCC building

Northern Nevada Community College Foundation last week received a $25,000 pledge from American Drug/Osco Drug Inc. toward the construction of the College Community Center.

"We are proud to be a contributor to NNCC, which helps mold and train our leaders of tomorrow," said Matt Gaston, general manager of the Elko Osco Drug Store.

Osco Drug Store Inc. (formerly Skaggs Drug Center) has been in existence for 50 years. The Elko store is one of 17 in Nevada and has served the community for approximately 20 years.

"We are most grateful of this generous gift from American Drug Stores and Osco Drug," said Dr. Ron Remington, president of NNCC. "It is wonderful receiving this type of support from a local business and its home office."

To date, the NNCC Foundation fund-raising efforts have resulted in $1.5 million for the College Community Center. The college is in the process of preparing for ground breaking for the first phase of the building project. The foundation is continuing its campaign to raise enough funds to construct the second phase.

BIG DONATION—Matt Gaston, left, manager for Osco Drug in Elko, presents a check for $25,000 on behalf of the drug store chain to NNCC President Ron Remington and NNCC Foundation member Marilee Harper. Remington commented that, "It is wonderful receiving this type of support from a local business and its home office. The funds will be used toward construction of the new College Community Center on the NNCC campus. Fund raising efforts by the college's foundation have thus far raised more than $1.5 million for the center.

Osco Drug Donates $25,000 To College

American Drug Stores/Osco Drug, Inc. announced this week a pledge of $25,000 to Northern Nevada Community College for construction of the College Community Center.

Elko Osco Drug manager, Matt Gaston, made the presentation to NNCC President Dr. Ron Remington, and to NNCC Foundation member Marilee Harper, who is also Director of the NNCC Child Center.

"We are proud to be a contributor to Northern Nevada Community College, which helps mold and train our leaders of tomorrow," Gaston said in a statement accompanying the donation.

Osco Drug of Elko (formerly Skaggs Drug Center) is one of 17 Osco stores in Nevada and has served the area for more than 20 years. The company has been in business for some 50 years.

NNCC President Remington accepted the contribution saying, "We are most grateful for this generous gift from American Stores and Osco Drug...It is wonderful receiving this type of support from a local business and its home office."

NNCC Foundation fundraising efforts have garnered some $1.5 million toward construction of the College Community Center.

Phase one of the new building on the NNCC campus will feature a cafeteria, meeting rooms, student offices, a bookstore, a "quiet" area and a communication center, as well as other facilities, according to architect J.D. Long of Elko, whose office designed the center.

The foundation is currently working to raise funds for Phase two of the building.

NNCC receives funds in LaVerne Hunt tribute

As a tribute to his mother, LaVerne Hunt, Theron Hunt recently made a $500 gift to the art department of Northern Nevada Community College. His donation was matched by Newmont Gold Company. Hunt's employer, announces Sarah Sweetwater, chairman of the art department.

In early October, some of the first $1,000 in the fund will be used to bring an outside artist to present a workshop, open to all artists, at NNCC, she explained.

Hunt says he will welcome gifts from family and friends to replenish the fund throughout the year. In this manner, an annual fall workshop can be established.

To help the fund regenerate, participating students will be asked to donate one or several paintings, drawings or whatever they complete as they study with different artists in different media each year to a "silent auction." Proceeds realized from this event will be added to the fund for the next year, Sweetwater said.

LaVerne (Daines) Hunt moved to Elko when she was 15 years old and worked for the Commercial Hotel and Red Lion Inn and Casino for 23 years before she returned to the art field, according to her son.

She was killed in an automobile accident in November of 1988, a year after she had established Desert Gold Gallery on south Fifth Street.

E.L. Cord Foundation gives NNCC donations

Northern Nevada Community College received a double donation from the E.L. Cord Foundation last week in the form of a $50,000 donation for the College Community Center and an $8,000 grant used by the career center to purchase three computers.

The E.L. Cord Foundation was created from the fortunes of Erret Lobban Cord, an inventor and owner of the Auburn Automobile Company Inc. during the 1930s. Cord owned several ranches, including one in Elko County. The foundation provides funding to charitable and educational institutions and organizations.

One of the computers purchased is large enough to act as a file server and is loaded with a software package known as Career Information System (CIS). The other two computers also are loaded with career software programs and word processing that will allow students to develop resumes and letters of application.

"The career center at NNCC has been made complete by this most generous grant," said Stan Aiazzi, dean of student services. "We have just recently felt that we can truthfully rename the center the success center because of the marked increase in use by the students and faculty."

The $50,000 contribution toward the College Community Center construction will assist with the first phase of the center. Campaign funding for the second phase of construction is continuing.

"We are most grateful for this generous gift," stated Jeanne Blach, NNCC Foundation chairman. "We really appreciate the support from a group such as the E.L. Cord Foundation."

culture, were on an inspection tour of Elko, Ely, Battle Mountain and Eureka extension offices. Davison and Torell have been volunteer part-time instructors at NNCC for three years, according to Pat Warren, director of continuing education. She says the Nevada Small Business Development Center, Cooperative Extension Service and NNCC often have combined and shared their resources to appeal to a broad audience and provide outstanding programs.

Valley Bank gives NNCC $25,000

Valley Bank of Nevada last week joined the ranks of 1990 contributors to the construction of the Northern Nevada Community College Community Center with a donation of $25,000.

"We are pleased to participate in the construction of the College Community Center on the NNCC campus and to assist in furthering the educational endeavors of the students of northeastern Nevada," said Ernie Martinelli, vice chairman of the board of Valley Bank.

Valley Bank has been operating in Nevada since January 1954. It began with a handful of employees and now employs more than 1,900. Valley Bank operates 58 branches statewide, with 12 new branches being built this year. In December 1987, Valley Bank merged with Security Bank and thus established an Elko branch. Plans are under way for a full service branch to be completed this August in Spring Creek.

"We are most grateful for this generous gift from Valley Bank," stated Jeanne Blach, campaign chairman. "We are in the process of preparing for ground-breaking for the first phase of the community center in September and this gift is a great boost for the second phase of raising funds for the building."

NNCC receives $5,000 from American Federal

Northern Nevada Community College Foundation received a $5,000 donation from American Federal Savings Bank this week in memory of Joe Maffi.

According to Eagle Tracks, a bank newsletter, Maffi was considered "Mr. First Federal" to many Northern Nevadans.

NNCC Foundation trustee Russ McMullen said, "We are very pleased to receive this donation in memory of a man loved by so many."

"At best, an organization is an extension of the people it serves and Joe Maffi understood this, he led by example," explained E.R. Houston, American Federal president and chief executive officer. "For many years Joe was our 'ambassador of goodwill' and this contribution in his memory epitomizes the ideals he challenged us to uphold."

NNCC Foundation is grateful for the interest in the college shown by this memorial, added McMullen.

Valuable gift: Bald Mountain Mine and Cortez Gold Mine, operating properties of Placer Dome U.S. Inc., donated an atomic absorption spectrophotometer to the Northern Nevada Community College mining lab technician program. The sensitive piece of equipment, worth approximately $15,000, will be in use for the upcoming fall classes. It is an analytical instrument that measures elements in parts per million and is considered a standard piece of equipment in various other types of labs. # NNCC dinner dance tickets now on sale

Tickets for the 1990 fall dinner dance sponsored by the Northern Nevada Community College Foundation are on sale at $35 each. The annual event is scheduled Oct. 13, beginning at 6:30 p.m. with a no-host cocktail hour at the Elko Convention Center.

Anne McMullen and Lori Burns, chairmen for this year's fund raiser, said the proceeds from the dinner dance are used to fund on-going scholarship programs and other student related projects. The event is being held in conjunction with the annual meeting of the foundation's board of directors.

Burns has designed the decorations for the evening to create an atmosphere reminiscent of a European country garden. A bocce ball court will be available for participants, and a putting tournament will be held during the cocktail hour. A certificate for a dinner for two at Machi's will be presented to the winner of the putting competition.

Dance organizers said this year a shuttle service will be available from the parking lot to the front entrance of the Convention Center. Rides will be provided by the Elko High School golf team.

Seating for dinner will begin at 7:30 p.m. Jeanne Blach, foundation chairman, and NNCC President Ron Remington are slated to speak during the dinner.

Music for dancing beneath a star-studded canopy will be provided by the Joe Muscalino Quartet from Salt Lake City.

Tickets are available from Connie Satterthwaite, Mary Harper, Fran Thiercof, Grace vanDalsen, Marilee Harper and Ruth Dobbs, all members of the special events committee. Tickets also are being sold at the Flower Shop and the McMullen Agency.

Table reservations for groups of eight or 10 can be made when tickets are purchased. All tickets must be purchased in advance, McMullen stressed.

Independence Mining Donates To NNCC

Independence Mining Co., Inc., recently made a contribution to the Northern Nevada Community College Foundation, the second donation offered as part of a company pledge to contribute a total of $75,000 to the foundation.

Cecil Kinard, vice president and general manager of the mining firm, presented the check to Foundation Director Jeanne Blach. In making the donation, Kinard noted that, "Independence has supported NNCC since our company began operations outside of Elko in the early 1980s. We want to let the college and the community know that our support will continue far into the future. Our contributions, identified early through our pledge, allow the college to plan its future growth knowing they have our backing. Both IMC and our employees benefit from having NNCC and its resources in our community, and we want to insure that the college prospers and grows."

In accepting the company donation, Blach commented that, "Independence Mining Company's continued support has been exceptional. We couldn't continue our current rate of growth without their contributions. Indeed, IMC had generously supported the college for many years prior to their pledge, and we are very excited to know that they are committed to the continued support of education and this community through support of the college and its foundation."

Kinard noted that Independence Mining has donated $37,500 to the NNCC Foundation since 1985, and supports education throughout Nevada by contributing to programs including Partners in Education, the KNPB Academic Challenge, and Building a Scholarship Heritage. Recently, Kinard added, the firm provided funding to the University of Nevada's Reno and Las Vegas campuses for two four-year scholarships at both universities, with plans to add two scholarships at each school annually.

Independence completes $75,000 NNCC pledge

Independence Mining Company last week presented Northern Nevada Community College with the second installment of a pledge made last year to contribute $75,000 to the college foundation.

"Independence has supported NNCC since our company began operations outside of Elko in the early 1980s and we want to let the college and the community know that our support will continue far into the future," Cecil Kinard, vice president and general manager of the mine, stated. "Our contributions, identified early through our pledge, allow the college to plan its future growth knowing they have our backing, both IMC and our employees benefit from having NNCC and its resources in our community and we want to insure that the college prospers and grows."

Jeanne Blach, director of the NNCC Foundation, added, "Independence Mining Company's continued support has been exceptional and we couldn't continue our current rate of growth without their contributions... Indeed, IMC has generously supported the college for many years prior to their pledge and we are excited to know that they are committed to the continued support of education and this community through support of NNCC and the Foundation."

IMC has regularly donated to the NNCC Foundation since 1985 and supports education throughout the state by sponsoring programs such as Partners in Education, the KNPB Academic Challenge and Building a Scholarship Heritage. Recently, IMC provided funds to the University of Nevada Las Vegas and Reno for two four-year scholarships at each university and plans to continue the scholarships annually.

New Construction Projects Set For NNCC

College Community Center — The new center at NNCC will be finished later this month. Work crews are putting the finishing touches on the inside of the center before the interior decorating begins. This is the center's lobby, complete with fountain and skylight.

Two new construction projects are slated this year for Northern Nevada Community College a third is in the planning stage.

The first is a new $4 million Technical Arts Building. This 22,000 square foot facility was approved in this legislative session.

According to Carl Diekhans, "The construction bidding process is in progress and will close on August 2nd. We anticipate that actual construction will begin at the end of August."

The facility will include both a diesel and automotive shop, a classroom for CAD graphics, classrooms for ceramics and pottery, a 150-seat tiered lecture room and ten faculty offices. The building will be located behind the tennis courts.

NNCC received $91,300 due to the efforts of legislator John Marvel. These funds will be utilized to design a college building for Winnemucca.

Residents in Winnemucca have expressed a desire for a facility there. The estimated cost of the building is about $850,000. It will be located across from the high school on land which was donated for college use by the School District. Construction won't begin until 1993.

The college was also a recipient of $2 million in matching funds for the College Community Center project. The College Community Center is currently under construction and is approximately 12,000 square feet. The Center will house the college bookstore, a 200-seat dining area, a study room, a social room, media area, Foundation and Associated Student Body offices, and offices for the public television and radio stations.

Ron Remington, President of NNCC, explained, "The current construction on the College Community Center has been funded through local donations of $2.1 million. We asked the legislature to match our local efforts. Although several versions of a bill to provide the match were discussed, the final version of the funding was through a one-time state general obligation bond. The legislature was truly impressed with the community's efforts in fundraising. We're particularly appreciative of the efforts of Senator Dean Rhoads, Assemblyman John Carpenter, Regent Dorothy Gallagher, and Foundation officials, Jeannie Bläch, Paul Sawyer, and Bonnie Bilbao for their efforts in helping to get the special legislation passed."

Completion of the first phase of construction is expected by late July. A grand opening ceremony has been planned for November 16th. "We now need to return to our building design committee for the remainder of the construction," said Remington. "The second stage of construction again will be designed with multiple uses in mind and will include an auditorium. Before we began this project, we surveyed our students and the community and have designed the building with their needs in mind."

Construction on the remaining portion of the building may start as early as next spring. Future plans also include special landscaping in the area to include the now dry eight mile creek. It is the hope of NNCC to make that area a central hub for the college.

CADV gift: Credit Professionals of Elko donated $350 to the Committee Against Domestic Violence earlier this week. CADV plans to use the gift for operating expenses including a 24-hour crisis hotline and a shelter for victims of violent crimes. Mak ing the gift to CADV director Sharon Ernst, right are Lynda Demaline, left, Credit Professionals vice president, and Judy Cunningham, president. The credit group also presented $500 to Northern Nevada Community College to be used toward a business scholarship. EDEP 11/17/90

Completion of the student building at Northern Nevada Community College is expected later this month. The building will house a dining hall, offices, study areas and a bookstore. Funding for the $1.9-million building came through donations to the NNCC Foundation and the legislature matched that money to pay for the second phase of the building, an auditorium.

Theater, technical arts building receive funds

Northern Nevada Community College was one of the winners in the recently concluded legislative session, gaining $6 million in state funds for building projects on the Elko campus and additional money for a satellite operation in Winnemucca.

Funds were granted for a $4 million technical arts building and a $2 million auditorium as well as $91,300 to plan office and classroom space in Winnemucca.

The auditorium is the second phase of the student building now under construction. When completed later this month, the building will house Associated Student Body offices, NNCC Foundation offices, a study area, offices for the public television station and the public radio station, a 200-seat dining hall and a bookstore. NNCC's Valerie Easterly noted the building was designed after surveying students to see what they wanted.

NNCC President Ron Remington said the building will greatly enhance student life — something traditionally lacking in community colleges. The 22,000 square foot technical arts building has been a high priority of the state public works board for several years, but the $2 million auditorium was a longer shot, Remington said yesterday.

The first try at funding the addition to the student building came in the form of a bill that would make excess slot machine tax money available for community colleges, on a matching-fund basis. A community that raised a million dollars for a project then could tap the fund for another million.

In Elko, phase one of the student building is being paid for out of local donations of $2.1 million to the NNCC Foundation. The bill was written to include those funds in the matching program, making the auditorium eligible for the slot tax money.

But that plan "didn't fly," Remington said.

The final version of the funding was a one-time bond issue, which Remington said was passed due to the efforts of the foundation and the donations from the community. He said what seemed to impress legislators the most was Elko had raised $2 million on its own. He also gave credit for the funding bill to Elko's legislative delegation, Dear-Khoads in the Senate and John Carpenter in the Assembly, as well as Paul Sawyer and Dorothy Gallagher and foundation officials Jeanne Blach and Bonnie Bilbao.

While the bond issue doesn't set up a continuing program for financing such buildings, Remington said it does set a precedent: When a community gets behind a project, the legislature will help.

The technical arts building, construction of which could start as early as this fall, will house the mechanics and mining programs, as well as the "dirty" arts, such as pottery, a 135-seat lecture hall and the Small Business Development Center. The college already is advertising for bids.

Construction of the auditorium could begin as early as next summer.

PARADE RULES GENERAL RULES THAT HAVE BEEN ADOPTED ARE AS FOLLOWS:

1. Parade Theme: "The Western Rancher".
2. Modern mechanized equipment will not be accepted as motive power for a float.
3. Commercial entries must be floats, old time horse-drawn equipment, or items of special interest. (Descriptions of entries should be furnished promptly, and must be received 1 week prior to parade date.)
4. All floats must be fully decorated.
5. If an entry stops or stalls, the parade will move around it.
6. Motor powered vehicles must be tuned and prepared to drive at a 1 to 2 1/2 mph pace for a distance of 1 mile.
7. All drills must be in forward motion. No counter-marching will be permitted. This will be requested, as other types of movement create large gaps in the parade.
8. No small animals will be permitted to walk in the parade. In the past, such entries have slowed the movement of the parade.
9. No entry can participate that has not received a parade number.
10. Units should assemble before 1:00 p.m. as designated on your parade map, which you will receive with your number. This will allow for pre-parade judging.
11. The parade will start promptly at 1:30 p.m.
12. You may pick up your number and parade position sheet at the address below until July 26. On parade day, July 27 you may pick up your number and parade position sheet between 12 noon and 1:00 p.m. at the corner of 6th & Commercial Street. Numbers must be shown plainly on the left front

Rhoads bill would provide matching funds for NNCC

State Senator Dean Rhoads of Elko County has introduced a bill that would make slot machine tax money available on a matching basis for community college capital improvement projects, including one in progress at Elko.

Rhoads said SB514, which has been referred to the Senate Finance Committee in Carson City, would create a fund making $500,000 per year available for the retirement of bonds issued to finance building projects at community colleges throughout the state. The "matching-fund" language in the bill anticipates that half the cost of eligible projects would be paid by private contributions.

Jeanne Blach, director of the Northern Nevada Community College Foundation in Elko, said today provisions of Rhoads' bill would make the foundation's community center project at NNCC eligible for matching funds. That would mean, she explained, that the foundation could move ahead with the project's second phase, which will add a 250-seat theater to the building now under construction.

Blach said the NNCC Foundation has raised $2 million in private donations, and the bill now before the legislature would make another $2 million available for the project in Elko. The first phase of the project, now being built, is budgeted at $1.3 million.

Rhoads said he expects a hearing on SB514 will be conducted within the next two weeks.

It would make the $500,000 per year available from the proceeds of a tax levied by the state against slot machines. Revenue from this levy finances several university and school projects, but growth in the yield of the tax has created a flow of money greater than existing obligations, Rhoads explained. This surplus revenue from the tax would provide the matching funds for community college projects.

Rhoads said about $200,000 per year would be sufficient to amortize a $2 million bond to match the private donations already collected in Elko.

Enabling clauses in SB514 designed to render the NNCC project eligible for matching funds provide that "...any donation of money made before July 1, 1991, may be included in determining the amount of money donated to defray the cost of a project," and "...money from the capital construction fund for community colleges may be used to defray the cost of a project commenced before July 1, 1991."

The initial phase of the Elko project, now abuilding, will provide a dining room, game room, social room, study room, foundation offices, a bookstore and a main foyer that will feature a fountain.

Island Lake site for class

Northern Nevada Community College has scheduled a one-credit summer class on the history of wildflowers and insects at Island Lake. The lake drains into Lamoille Canyon.

According to Mark Ports, NNCC biology instructor, class members will study flowers and insects of the Ruby Mountains through the use of slides, specimens and a field trip.

Class will be held from 7 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. July 16 and 18. The field trip is scheduled for July 20; the day-long trip will include a two-mile hike from Lamoille Canyon to Island Lake.

The course is designed for anyone interested in the history of the Ruby Mountains, Ports stated. The class is approved for recertification credit for teachers.

Anyone interested in registering may enroll at the Student Services office, located in Berg Hall at NNCC.

New College Advisory Board Members

Northern Nevada Community College will have four new advisory board members starting in July.

"We're please to welcome Sharon Rhoads, Ray Kendall, John McDonough, and Bill Guisti," said Ron Remington, President of NNCC.

"Our advisory board members provide a critical link to the community. We gather input and advice on everything from master facilities planning to program offerings."

"It is part of our mission as a community college to establish and maintain a sense of community in Northeast Nevada. We share with the community a vision of progress and the advisory board members help us cement the partnership with all the communities within our service area."

The new advisory board members will join Dr. Hugh Collett, Scott Hase, Steve Hernandez, Chuck Knight, Eleanor Little-Prior, Dave Rhoden, Connie Satterthwaite, Warren Scott, Gary Theilen, Sharon Feltman, Ralph Paoli, and James Zacharias.

Train Gives To Community College - Union Pacific Railroad Foundation presented the Northern Nevada Community College Foundation last week with a check for $15,000 to assist with the construction of Phase I of the college community center. UPRR sets grant money aside to distribute to honorable endeavors located throughout communities connected with the railroad. The gift presentation was made aboard a lounge car that was part of the special vintage steam engine entourage that visited Elko Wednesday. NNCC is recognized by UPRR for its "English as a Second Language" program that assists non-english speaking railroad employees. Pictured above, from left, are NNCC Foundation board members Mark Chilton, Dr. Ron Remington and Jeanne Blach and Judy Swantak, president of the UPRR Foundation and Wayne Horiuchi, UPRR special representative.

U.P. Antique Trains Arrive With Gift

by: URSULA DRAKE

Union Pacific Railroad Foundation officials made a stopover in real style Wednesday with two vintage steam locomotives to present a check of $15,000 to the Northern Nevada Community College Foundation.

A large group of Elkoans were on hand to welcome the train and visitors stopped by for a look even after the sun went down. During a special evening ceremony in a dome car, Union Pacific Foundation president Judy Swantak and Wayne Horiuchi, UPRR special representative, presented the grant to NNCC Foundation members. The grant will go towards funds for Phase I of the college's community center.

According to Swantak, UPRR recognizes worthy community programs located in the railroad's service areas, nationwide, and appreciates NNCC for coordinating a visiting performing artists program about two years and for their English as a Second Language classes. UP has 100 employees in the Elko area and 500 throughout the state, some in need of english-speaking skills. "Good communications skills make them better employees," said Horiuchi.

NNCC Foundation Chair Jeanne Blach stated, "Union Pacific has been very generous to NNCC and it's Foundation in the past and we look forward to a long and prosperous relationship for all entities."

Elko was one of many towns located between Omaha, Nebraska and Sacramento, Calif. to receive grants from the railroad. The grants are a result of the railroads earnings.

In conjunction with the gift-giving trip, UPRR is taking the two steam locomotives and a special passenger train with 22 cars to Railfair '91 in Sacramento. The railroad exposition, sponsored by California State Railroad Museum, is held every ten years and all railroads bring their vintage equipment to the event.

"We love Elko," said Swantak, at the close of the ceremony.

UP donates to college

Members of Northern Nevada Community College Foundation went aboard a special passenger train last night to accept a $15,000 donation from the Union Pacific Railroad Foundation.

The presentation was made while a special steam train was making an overnight stop in Elko en route to a railroad fair in Sacramento, Calif.

Accepting the donation on behalf of the NNCC foundation were Jeanne Blach, chairman; Ronald Remington, secretary; and Mark Chilton, board member. Representing the railroad foundation were Judy Swantak, president; Barbara Myers, manager of Union Pacific Corp.; and Trish Jorgensen, assistant to the chairman of Union Pacific.

Blach said, "Union Pacific has been very generous to NNCC and its foundation in the past and we look forward to a long and prosperous relationship for all entities."

NNCC center: A skylight, rising 28 feet above what will be the lobby, towers over construction workers at the new community center for Northern Nevada Community College. Work is about 35 percent finished on the $1.2 million center. This week, workers were enclosing the building's frame with gypsum sheathing. Mark B. Garff Construction Co. of Salt Lake City is building the first phase of the facility, which will include a bookstore, lunchroom and other facilities. The completion date has been pushed back two weeks to mid-July because of bad weather. Phase II is to feature a 250-seat auditorium.

Public radio station almost ready to air

Public radio is coming to Elko. KNCC, as the new station will be called, should begin broadcasting in May, said District Attorney Marshall Smith, who is in charge of establishing the station. When the station will go on the air depends on when volunteers will be able to install an antenna on Elko Mountain, he explained.

The station, which will be heard on 91.5 FM, will originally broadcast the signal of Reno's public radio station, KUNR. Smith hopes to start broadcasting local news and classical, jazz and folk music this summer, but that depends on when construction of the new building at Northern Nevada Community College, where the station will be housed, is completed, he said. The building is scheduled to be completed in mid-July.

Since it is a public radio station, there will be no commercials, said Smith. Funds will be raised through corporate sponsors, membership drives, auctions and other methods.

Carl Diekhans, NNCC dean of college services, said it will cost a minimum of $20,000 a year to keep the station running. He added that volunteers decided to name the station KNCC because those that grouping of letters had "a ring to it" and KNCC didn't.

Public radio was the one thing Smith said he missed since he moved from Sacramento, Calif., in 1968. He said he saw a need for the station here.

"Public radio is dependent on people interested in a commercial-free source of news and information, and public and cultural events," Smith said.

Volunteers have begun placing posters that read "It's Coming" around town. Posters with more information will be put up in about three weeks, Smith said.

A meeting has been scheduled for 7 p.m. April 30 at the county library for people interested in volunteering. More information is available at 738-8493.

'It's Coming...' Elko Public Radio

Elko will soon have it's own public radio station, according to Marshall Smith, of Elko, who has been appointed to oversee the initial operation of the radio station. Dr. Ron Remington of Northern Nevada Community College appointed Smith in February to this position.

The commercial free FM station will broadcast nationally acclaimed and award winning news programs such as All Things considered and Morning Edition along with local news and information. "I am excited about the capability we will have to broadcast comprehensive news and information stories which are taking place right here in Elko in addition to state, national, and international stories" said Smith, in a prepared statement. The station will also broadcast a variety of programming ranging from classical, jazz, and folk music.

The station will be housed at the Northern Nevada Community College in Elko. The station is licensed with the Federal Communication Commission to broadcast on 91.5 FM with the call letters "KNCC." Although housed at the community college, "the station will be independent of the college and operated by a not-for-profit corporation, known as Friends of KNCC," said Smith.

KNCC will operate as an associate station of KUNR Public Radio station located on the campus of the University of Nevada, Reno. "Initially, we will broadcast 100% of KUNR signal, until we are ready to originate and broadcast our own signal... We anticipate going on air with KUNR signal as early as May 1991 with local origination beginning sometime this summer" said Smith. "Last November several of the project volunteers poured the cement foundation for the tower on Elko Mountain. We are waiting for the weather to clear to complete the installation project" according to Smith.

"Public Radio must have two things to survive, money and volunteers...public radio is dependent on people interested in a commercial free source of news and information and public and cultural events."

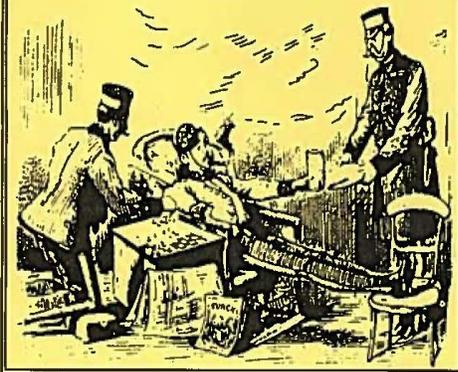

A public meeting has been scheduled for April 30, 1991 at the Elko County Library main conference room at 7:00 p.m. Everyone interested in public radio and volunteering their time and energy to this project are invited to attend. Committees such as programming, technical, and fundraising will be formed. Interested persons may call 738-8493 for more information. E.Indi, 4/3/91

ON THE HORIZON - This is the site at Northern Nevada Community College where crews are constructing a $1.3 million dollar Community Center. Steel beams for the new building started going up February 18 under the direction of Garff Construction, Inc. of Salt Lake City. The building was designed by Architect J.D. Long of Elko and is scheduled for completion late this summer. When finished, the initial phase of the NNCC Foundation building will feature a cafeteria and bookstore as well as a formal lobby and reflecting pool. The privately-funded project is due to be presented as a gift to the community soon after completion.

Barrick Goldstrike Donates Funds to NNCC Foundation

A check in the amount of $30,000 was presented to Dr. Ronald Remington, Secretary of the NNCC Foundation by representatives of Barrick Goldstrike Mining Inc. The check is part of Barrick's $100,000 pledge to the NNCC Foundation for the College Community Center.

Phase I of the center has begun and the anticipated completion date is June 21, 1991. Along with their donation, Barrick has chosen to name the game room in the center the "Barrick Goldstrike Mines Inc. Activity Center." Mrs. Jeanne Blach, Chair of the Foundation states, "I am very grateful to John McDonough and Barrick for their support. There truly will be no other building like this in the city which reflects the generosity of businesses and individuals who make up the College's service area."

This latest pledge is part of the on-going support Barrick Goldstrike Mines Inc. provides NNCC. Donations in the past have gone to the assay lab, diesel automotive department, the radio station, the welding shop, and for various pieces of office equipment. Barrick is also a main contributor to the Mechanical Technology Training Program (MTTP) which provides training to area high school graduates interested in mechanical technology.

Also on hand for the presentation was Stan Popeck, Coordinator of MTTP for NNCC, who states, "We are grateful for Barrick's past support of our programs and look forward to a long relationship with them."
