Review:

An interesting take on the rather difficult subject of loss. The director uses humor by "killing" her dad in numerous ways to help face the inevitable. These fake deaths are not the reason you want to watch this film. Mr Johnson is the most lovable and happy human being I have ever seen on film and makes this a most enjoyable film that deals with losing a loved one. Not the kind of subject you want to spend an evening watching but Dick Johnson will make you smile.
